

Southern Resident Killer Whales: Will the Next Generation Survive?

Southern Resident Killer Whales, also known as Orcas, have had a special place in Puget Sound for many generations. However, their current status is endangered due to lack of food, toxic pollution and noise levels.

Come learn from a panel of scientists and managers about their place in our ecosystem and what's being done to protect them.

Learn how you can play a role in their recovery.

Speakers:

- Dr. Richard Osborne, Whale Museum/Soundwatch/UW
- Jacques White, Executive Director, Long Live the Kings

6:30 p.m. | Wednesday | October 16

Mukilteo Rosehill Community Center, Point Elliot Room
304 Lincoln Ave, Mukilteo, WA 98275

Doors open at 6:00 p.m.
Presentations begin promptly at 6:30 p.m.
Light refreshments will be served.

Event sponsored by:

