

Project Updates for the November 1, 2022 Meeting

Other Reports

Shore Friendly

1. Ann Prusha has been conducting site visits with James Watson from the Whidbey Island Conservation District. Since August, they have conducted 5 site visits together, with 4 more planned for November.
2. Island County's Lead Entity and Shore Friendly have been working together to create a postcard to go out to all of the shoreline landowners in Island County's Salmon Geographic Priority Areas 1 and 2. Here's the link to the postcard and more information.
3. Shore Friendly is looking forward to conducting more site assessments, creating vegetation designs, and responding to postcard recipients this winter!

Sound Water Stewards

- VET: Training for 2022 concluded on October 20th.
- Camano 101: On September 24th, SWS had a table at Camano 101, one of 19 organizations at this information fair, which was well attended. Co-leads for the event were Maribeth Crandell (Island Transit), Scott Chase (Island County MRC), and Kristine Vannoy (WSU Extension). Kristine will be taking SWS training and assist in planning for Camano 101 and Whidbey 101 in 2023, the first held on Whidbey since 2006.
- Harvest Fest: Several SWS Volunteers helped out at the well-attended Harvest Fest at Cama Beach State Park on October 22nd.
- WCLT: Whidbey volunteers have been assisting at WCLT work parties.
- Beach Cleanups: Volunteers have been taking part in beach cleanups, organized and led by Kacie Dominici of WSU Extension.
- Events Planning Committee: Camano volunteers will be meeting in November to create an Events Planning Committee.
- Annual meetings: Each island will have their Annual Meeting on November 15th, including highlights of the last year and a potluck lunch.
